Fresh Launch for Board Website

The Passenger Transportation Board is re-launching its website. The updated site is now online at www.ptboard.bc.ca.

New pages have been added. Useful features have been introduced. The organization and navigation have been improved. These changes make it easier to find information that is current and relevant to a particular issue. The next time you visit the site, here is some of what you will find:

- A search feature that lets you search the Board site for information about a particular issue or decision.

- New pages that focus on specific issues such as eco-friendly vehicles, accessible taxis and the Taxi Bill of Rights (in Metro Vancouver).

- Additional document and information not previously available online, including:
    - Board mission, values and goals
    - Annual reports
    - Memorandum of Understanding between the Board the Ministry of Transportation and Infrastructure, and
    - Information about post-decision options.

You may also notice that the name of the Passenger Transportation Board Bulletin has changed to the Weekly Bulletin. This publication continues to make application summaries and decision documents accessible online. However, the Weekly Bulletin itself is more concise and easier to navigate.
